

Dear Game Plan Participants,

We want to invite you to participate in our next Game Plan session on Wednesday, February 3, 2021, from 6:00 pm – 8:00 pm (virtual format: Zoom). As we previously mentioned, the idea is that you must have a “game plan” to win in sports, and the same applies to success in academics. Our series allows you to hear the game plans from former (collegiate and professional) athletes to aid you in your preparation. Our next guest speaker is medical student Femi Oyewole.

Femi Oyewole

Biosketch

Femi Oyewole went to University of Massachusetts Amherst for undergrad where he majored in Biochemistry & Mathematics. He played football for the university and during his time received both the Dean's list award and the Scholar Athlete award. He took two years off after college to move to San Diego where he worked for TriLink Biotechnologies, a lab that makes custom oligonucleotides (basically DNA sequences). Since arriving in medical school, he has been heavily involved in TA & tutoring positions, taught the MCAT summer course, worked in our student-run clinic EHHOP, and been involved in two publications.